Style: Adult Alternative Pop/Rock

“patchwork.fm” is a Vienna-based pop band centered around US/Austrian lead singer Annie Kay. The fivesome launched their debut album, “More Than Meets The Eye” in Autumn 2004.

The Music

The music of patchwork.fm (“Adult Alternative Pop/Rock”) is sufficiently easy-listening to appeal to a wide audience, but it isn't mainstream. An amalgam of style elements treats listeners to a welcome change from ordinary music fare. The album's title “More Than Meets The Eye” accurately reflects this condition: There is more (to see and hear) than you may think at first sight or hearing. Patchwork.fm uses pleasant melodies and “alternative” style elements to captivate its audiences' ears and hearts.

Kay's expressive voice and her vocal arrangements are central to the band's sound that runs the gamut from upbeat and easy-going to pensive and mysterious. The songs demand to be heard from beginning to end, the vocal line weaving through each song like a thread stitching together and sustaining a vibrant musical patchwork quilt.

“More Than Meets The Eye” is an inventive mosaic of lyrical ballads, upbeat songs and atmospheric journeys of sound.

The Name

patchwork: - creative compound of sound textures, rhythmic accents and style influences
- interaction and communication between five musicians

The Background

From 1998 to 2001, the Austrian band "patchwork.fm" amply tried and tested its substantial musical vocabulary on audiences in many clubs up and down the city of Vienna and its surroundings. It's positive reception at live performances, for instance at Unplugged, Café Kino, Institut Français de Vienne, La Crêperie, Mautner's, Planet Music, the Planet Music Café and ZuGaBe strengthened the band's resolve to commit it's original compositions to CD. Early 2001, the band withdrew to draw upon the expertise of artists in L.A. and work intensely on arranging, recording and mixing their songs for the release of their debut "More Than Meets The Eye".
